Roald Dahl (1916-1990) was born in Llandaff, South Wales, and went to Repton School in England. His parents were Norwegian, so holidays were spent in Norway. As he explains in 'Boy', he turned down the idea of university in favor of a job that would take him to 'a wonderful faraway place'. In 1933 he joined the Shell Company, which sent him to Mombasa in East Africa. When World War II began in 1939 he became a fighter pilot and in 1942 was made assistant air attaché in Washington, where he started to write short stories. His first major success as a writer for children was in 1964. Thereafter his children's books brought him increasing popularity, and when he died children mourned the world over, particularly in Britain where he had lived for many years.

These are wonderful! Completely delightful if you are familiar with the books and the illustrations over the years. And they arrived in perfect shape well protected in a box.

Small format, i.e., takes postcard stamp. Wonderful reminders of all of Dahls books...and their excellent illustrations. You can't go wrong if you enjoy both postcards and this funny and insightful author of so many children's books.
