Customer Reviews

Lots of topics covered. I will not use a lot of the info as I'll be cruising around the country and eating most meals on the ship. Descriptions of what foods to try was very interesting though. I think I will miss some great adventures! Weather info has been highlighted and will be checked. Thanks for the laugh out loud descriptions at times!

Great tips for first-timers going to Iceland! Concise and humorous, full of need-to-know advice from pre-arrival to departure. Well worth $.99!

I got a nice feeling for things to do and look for during my upcoming stay in Iceland, but the nature and purpose of the book left a lot unsaid. Since I am by nature an independent explorer, it works for me, but others might find it a little too breezy and unfulfilling. I'm glad I bought it, though...

I purchased this book to help me plan a trip, and it's great. I love the author's voice--it's like having a funny friend give you advice! It's also nice to hear from a local how things work. There is some overlap with other guidebooks, but it's almost worth it just for the jokes alone. I'd recommend it if you want more of an inside view of things.

Quick checklist of do's and don'ts - a great intro to researching Iceland. I would recommend this book to Icelandic novices like me who are just beginning my research for a fabulous vacation! This is exactly what I want now, and it provides lots of avenues for more research. It addresses all the basics - when to visit, rental car options to consider, Icelandic people speak English, and most importantly, "If you are vegan, we've got you covered."!

A quick list of basic info, saw some useful info! Easy to read, might save you some cash and help you pick out where and what to eat. Very helpful and a fun read.

Just enough to get a feeling of what to expect. Well worth the 99 cents. Many useful tips - especially regarding travelling on the island. Friendly, lighthearted and welcoming.

A quick and dirty guide to keep the ugly American less ugly. Great ideas and suggestions to make your visit complete.
